

To the Leadership, Designers, and Engineering Teams at Anvil Aerospace,

On behalf of Asgard, it is with immense pride and gratitude that we take delivery of our namesake vessel, the Asgard. As we prepare to take the first of these ships at your Nova Kyiv headquarters on Terra, we reflect on the spirit of partnership that has defined our long-standing relationship.

For many years, Asgard has proudly relied on Anvil Aerospace—flying the Arrow, Carrack, Hornet and most recently the Lightning series through countless missions. With the arrival of the Asgard, we are thrilled to add another exceptional vessel to our fleet. We have long admired the innovation and craftsmanship of Anvil's engineers and designers, and we look forward with anticipation to experiencing all that the Asgard has to offer in the 'verse.

To everyone at Anvil whose dedication has brought this ship to life— designers, engineers, fabricators, logisticians, and support staff alike—thank you. Your expertise and tireless efforts shine through in every panel, circuit, and system of the Asgard, and we are honored to take the helm of a vessel born from your vision.

As our crews step aboard at Nova Kyiv—ready to chart new courses across the 'verse and beyond—they carry not only advanced propulsion and defensive suites, but also the trust and respect that underpins our collaboration. We look forward to continuing this journey together, setting new benchmarks for security, exploration and trade across the stars.

With highest esteem and anticipation,

Nabel

Leader, Asgard